The photo of "Snowfall in Wevertown" is my favorite landscape. The portraits of Earl Allen and Jesse Warren are the finest I've even seen. Joe Minder's story touched me deeply, and when I finished peering inside Lucia Ross' life, my eyes were very wet. Your book is now a safe keeper of a vanishing way of life in the Adirondacks, but most importantly you captured the full spectrum of the human spirit. A quote from Abraham Lincoln came to mind after I finished your book, "God must love the common folk he made so many of them." I'm so looking forward to your follow up book, "Never a Dull Moment".2 of 2 people found the following

Having grown up in the area and still having family in the area is what drew me to this particular book. I remember my father telling me about some of the people, as well as my mother-in-law who also resides in the area. I also have a daughter in medical school so I will pass this on to her so she can round out her understanding of all areas of medicine and people. The beautiful photographs added to this book. Anyone interested in the Adirondacks or in the medical field would find this book a must have for their collection.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Dale C BarrowsReally nice book!!!

Over 100 color photographs vividly portray the people and places of the southeastern Adirondacks as seen by a Glens Falls family physician who has spent more than thirty years practicing rural medicine in such places as Bolton Landing, Warrensburg, North Creek, Indian Lake, Long Lake, Wells, and Speculator. The book is a breathtaking collection of Adirondack landscapes from Way' s travels, mingled with portraits of his patients taken in their homes and the many stories that reveal the full spectrum of humor, sorrow, wonder, and stress that constitutes the doctor-patient relationship. The book' s patient population includes trappers, war heroes, matriarchs, lumbermen, Great Camp residents, hermits, and transplanted "flatlanders." Their stories will leave the reader enriched while enjoying views of Adirondack rivers, mountains, lakes, and forests.

All in a Day's Work is a powerful, affecting work. It belongs on every Adirondack bookshelf and every nightstand, where it deserves to be picked up often and read again and again. --Edward Kanze, Adirondack ExplorerAbout the AuthorDaniel Way, M.D., began taking pictures at the age of eleven and had already developed a passion for the art long before beginning his career in family medicine for the Hudson Headwaters Health Network, which serves the entire southeastern Adirondacks.
