Billie Wright : Four Seasons North before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Four Seasons North:

From back cover: "A remarkable woman's sensitive and captivating journal of the first year she and her husband spent in the remote Brooks Range country of arctic Alaska, living in a 12 by 12 foot cabin they built themselves, near a mountain lake. It's fascinating and heartening reading, filled with the wonder of the wilderness and its animals, details of survival in extremes of climate, and the search for meaning in the isolation, self reliance and the traditional Eskimo way of life."
